These companies may change and we will keep our privacy policy updated.

We may transfer your personal information outside of the United Kingdom and the European Economic Area, for example, we outsource some of our IT services to India. Such countries may have different standards for data protection, therefore we will ensure adequate safeguards are in place to protect your personal information in accordance with our legal obligations.

6. When can we use your information?

We rely on the following lawful bases for processing your personal information:

- Contractual obligations – we may use your personal information when it is necessary for us to do so to perform our contractual obligations to you. For example, if you order an item from us for delivery, we will collect your address in order to deliver your item, and we may pass it on to a third party courier, if necessary.
- Legitimate interests – we may use your personal information for the purposes of our legitimate interests in a way which you might reasonably expect and which does not materially impact your rights and interests. For example, we may use your order history to make personalised offers and promotions available to you and for existing customers.
- Legal obligations – we may use your personal information to comply with legal obligations that we are subject to. For example, to comply with a request by HM Revenue & Customs.
- Vital interest – we may use your personal information for your own safety. For example, if there is an urgent safety or product issue that we need to contact you about.
- Consent – we may use your personal information when we have your consent to do so. For example, when you opt-in to receive email newsletters. When we rely on consent as the lawful basis for processing, you have the right to withdraw your consent. Please see section 9 for further details on how to withdraw your consent.

7. How long will we keep your information for?

We will keep your personal information for as long as is necessary for our business purposes or for legal requirements. This may mean that we retain some information for 6 years from the end of your dealings with us.

If you are a member of our Rewards programme, we may suspend or deactivate your account if you do not log in to your Rewards account for a period of 12 months, but we will still retain your personal information as described above.

8. How do we protect your information?

We have appropriate security measures in place to prevent personal information from being accidentally lost or used or accessed in an unauthorised way. We limit access to your personal information to those who have a genuine business need to know it. Those processing your personal information will do so only in an authorised manner and are subject to a duty of confidentiality.

We also have procedures in place to deal with any suspected data security breach. We will notify you and any applicable regulator of a suspected or actual data security breach where we are legally required to do so.

9. What rights do you have over your information?

You have the following rights (free of charge in most cases) in relation to your personal information:

- Fair processing and transparency about how we use your information
- The right to access your information
- The right to insist that we correct any mistakes in the information that we hold
- The right to erase or delete your information in certain situations
